

LOVE

To love itself in Christ Jesus means to sacrifice itself for I love, not to judge who I love, to work for who I love, but above all to want the good, only the good of who I love. The love then between you, will accomplish great miracles. In addition to many healings, it will heal mental and psychological attitudes in interpersonal relationships and there will be healings of bodies, because the love can accomplish great things. As I tell you, God loves you and you love Him you love each other. But in which way to love? Love God worshipping him and glorifying him; love the brothers whom God put me next in the family, in the Church, out and all the people that I will have a chance to meet. To love God means to trust him. To love means put in him my every desire, every my sadness, my every aspiration, my every confidence and to live exclusively of Him, that will take the first place in my life. To adore Jesus within of me is this a lot important, because then I can adore it also out in everything and every creature who I will have next to me. Everything must be done to give glory to God, that God who gave me everything: first of all his Son Jesus and then everything in nature, in brothers and in everything is at my service, at the service of creatures. To adore and glorify Me than everyone of you, together in Spirit and Truth, means to be loyal to oneself and to one's neighbor. I want generous hearts, hearts ready to give themselves to Me and to one's neighbor, because only generosity will create that environment of love that is needed to proceed in these things. I want to become your friend, your confidant. When I am human do I use more confidence with friends? When I know them better, when I trust them, when I know I can certainly count on them. The same is for your God. But imagine the joy you give to my Heart in this confidence and, what joy you give yourself, when this confidence makes you absolutely calm! You will see how much you get from this confidence! If this confidence then passed into your prayers, how much would you get! To love means to accept, to welcome what the next one is, without any judgment. Then it is through that love that «everything covers, believes everything, hopes all, endures all»¹, that you will be renewed in love, that love that God has placed in your hearts. The love that endures all means that I will not bear the other because I cannot do without him and therefore I am forced, but because I too give my shortcomings and limits I will need to be endured, accepted, understood and loved by that love that is from God and that involves God and creature. The love, then, everything must cover means that if I love my brother I must not reveal anything that he has accomplished and that I may not accept, but that in order to say that I love him in a pure way, I must absolutely welcome him. Because if I am astonished by nothing of what I should say for this brother, I will create that pure love that covers all those hardships that the brother has or can have, but I have in my turn. If I compare my limits to his, then everything becomes clear, bearable and everything suggests to me, it is inclined to never point out anyone, but to always cover benevolently what he does. Because it is through that love endures all things and all covers, that you will be renewed in love, that love which God has placed in your hearts, but which you, with your human attitudes, have ruined and disintegrated, made inaccessible.
